DETAILED ACTION

1. Claim 74 and newly added claim 79 are pending. Claim 74 has been amended and claim 79 has been added in this communication filed 03/14/03 entered as Amendment B, paper no. 7.

2. The IDS filed 07/31/02 has been entered as Paper no. 4. However, only one of the references, the English Language Summary of Office Action Dated 6/6/01, patent application no. 286599, and the abstract "Information retrieval system based on multi-agents" was considered since the other references were not translated into English.

3. The Change of Address filed 11/14/02 has been acknowledged and entered as paper no. 6.

Amendment Objection

4. The amendment filed 03/14/03 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132 because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132 states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: determining a first value equal to the overlap number of pages in the filtered full list of results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines divided by the number of pages in the filtered full list of the second third-party search engine; determining a second value equal to a number of pages in the filtered full list of the first third-party search engine divided by the overlap number of pages in the filtered full list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party search engines; and determining an estimate of the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party engines by dividing the second value by the first value.

Applicants are respectfully requested to specifically point out in the Specification where these limitations are located or to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

6. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) do not apply to the examination of this application as the application being examined was not (1) filed on or after November 29, 2000, or (2) voluntarily published under 35 U.S.C. 122(b). Therefore, this application is examined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

7. Claims 74 and 79 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by (US 6,078,914) Redfern.

With respect to claim 74, Redfern teaches, forwarding a query to each of the plurality of third-party search engines (col. 3, lines 10-16 and lines 32-36, col. 9, lines 66-67, col. 10, lines 1-7, and col. 15, lines 50-65); retrieving a full list of results comprising pages matching the query from the plurality of third-party search engines

(col. 4, lines 20-28 and col. 10, lines 50-63); retrieving text for all pages listed in the full list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party search engines (col. 16, lines 40-45, col. 24, lines 31-64, col. 25, lines 1-15 and lines 28-65, col. 26, lines 60-66, col. 27, lines 3-50, col. 28, lines 36-67, and col. 29, lines 3-25); filtering out pages from the full list of results corresponding to each of the of third-party search engines if the pages are unavailable or no longer match the query (col. 3, lines 3-6, lines 21-28, and lines 39-45, and col. 10, lines 39-50); and estimating the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party search engines, by comparing an overlap number of pages in the filtered full list of results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines to an overlap number of pages in the filtered full list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party engines (col. 33, lines 3-65 and col. 34, lines 15-35 (shows a comparison of the pages from each search engine)).

With respect to claim 79, Redfern teaches, i) determining a first value equal to the overlap number of pages in the filtered full list of results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines divided by the number of pages in the filtered full list of the second third-party search engine (col. 15, lines 19-31); ii) determining a second value equal to a number of pages in the filtered full list of the first third-party search engine divided by the overlap number of pages in the filtered full list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party search engines (col. 15, lines 66-67 and col. 16, lines 1-27); and iii) determining an estimate of the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party engines by dividing the second value by the first value (col. 16, lines 29-60 and col. 18, lines 20-46).

R sponds to Arguments

8. Applicants' arguments filed 03/04/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants' argue: Applicants' respectfully submit that the primary reference to Redfern does not anticipate the present invention, i.e., failing to disclose each and every element as particularly claimed in the independent Claim 74 and the Applicants' respectfully submit that Redfern fails to disclose estimating the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party search engines by comparing an overlap number of pages in the filtered full list results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines to an overlap number of pages in the filtered list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party engines has been considered but is not persuasive because (1) "estimating the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party search engines by comparing an overlap number of pages in the filtered full list results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines to an overlap number of pages in the filtered list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party engines" is an amendment to claim 74, therefore, making this argument "moot" and (2) the Examiner still does not find in Applicants' Specification on page 38, lines 3-19 and fig. 31 enough support for the limitation "estimating the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party search engines by comparing an overlap number of pages in the filtered full list results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines to an overlap number of pages in the filtered list of results corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party engines". Page 38, lines 3-19 recite "Consider the overlap between engines a and b in figure 31. Assuming that each engine samples the Web independently, the quantity ... is the number of documents returned by engine b, is an estimate of the fraction of the indexable Web, ... Using the coverage of 6 engines as a reference point ... the number of unique documents returned by the combination of 6 engines. Thus, ... of engine a with respect to the coverage of the 6 engines, ... We use this equation to estimate the size of the Web in relation to the amount of the Web covered by the 6 engines considered here.” The Applicants’ are respectfully request to point out in the Specification where on page 38, lines 3-19 and in fig. 31 “comparing an overlap number of pages in the filtered full list results corresponding to each of the first and the second third-party engines to an overlap number of pages in the “filtered list of results” corresponding to each of the plurality of third-party engines” is found. The Applicants’ are respectfully requested to either point out the elements of the amendment to claim 74 and newly added claim 79 in the Specification or cancel the new subject matter or add the subject matter as amendment to the Specification. Failure to not respond to this request will result in a 35 U.S.C. 112 First paragraph rejection and a 35 U.S.C. 112 second paragraph rejection. The terms “estimating the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party search engines” is very vague and indefinite. If the claim language is not amended this can result in a 35 U.S.C. 112 second paragraph rejection.

2. Applicants’ argue: The Applicants’ respectfully submit that Redfern does not disclose estimating the relative coverage of the plurality of third-party search engines, as particularly recited in the independent Claim 74 and Applicants’ further respectfully submit that Redfern further fails to disclose the newly added Claim 79 has been considered but are not persuasive based on Applicants' appear to be arguing their amendment to claim 74 and newly added claim 79. Therefore, these arguments are considered "moot."

As a preliminary matter, in an effort to give the application a proper examination and to expedite prosecution, Applicants' are respectfully requested to provide the following references mentioned in Applicants' Specification: On page 6, (Salton, G. 1989), Automatic text processing: the transformation, analysis and retrieval of information by computer, Addison-Wesley); page 20, Willet, P.
